“ Our sympathy to you, Janet and Virginia. Jessie is the last of our childhood "moms" to go, and that removes a little bit of security from the world. I remember her as a beautiful woman who was always gracious. (In particular, the night I spent at your house and came down with the flu. As I recall, I threw up on the stairs and was covered in shame. Your mom called my mom, who was horrified, but Jessie tried hard to make me feel less guilty.) This was especially kind as she was an amazing housekeeper. She really was a eye-opener for me. She and Elda Harader had such grace and style which was unusual in the rural, 1950s. I wanted to have a house that looked like Jessie's, and keep it the way she did. I've been a dismal failure in that respect, but she was a great example. I am so sorry to hear of her passing and wish you both comfort and peace. Judith Tolles Admire
