“ My deepest condolences to the Cowgill family. Ronnie was part of the McAllen/Edinburg bowling family. He was a great guy who was easy to share a laugh with and a heck of a bowler. He will be greatly missed and may he Rest In Peace. Eli Longoria, Jr.

“ My friend Lonnie Trevino brought Ronnie to Houston with him a couple of years ago and introduced me. We had a meal together and I had the feeling Ronnie and I could be friends and 'hang out together also', if we were in closer proximity to each other. I first impression of him was a good one, I thought he was a very nice fellow. I was sorry to hear of his illness, the complications he suffered subsequently, and most of all his death. I am also sorry my friend Lonnie has lost such a good friend in Ronnie Cowgill.

“ Remembering Ron in our hearts, thoughts and memories.

To the living, Ron is gone
To the sorrowful, Ron will never return
To the angry, Ron was cheated
But to the happy, Ron is at peace
And to the faithful, Ron has never left.

For if you always think of Ron,
He will never have gone.

“ My condolences to all the Cowgill families. Ronnie was a very close friend of mine for about 30 years and we bowled in the same team for the last 24 years. Ronnie was one of the best bowlers in all the bowling leagues in McAllen. He was even a better bowler on all tournaments, Texas or national events. He loved to Tavel and enjoyed the competitions from all the tournaments. He and I would spend time watching the Astros together, because we are true fans. He loved rock music, so we would enjoy he's great collection of rock music. He new all the names of every song and band members. I was alway amazed. Ronnie will be missed, but not forgotten, because he was my friend.
