

Carole Ann Inks - Warren

November 25, 2021

Carole Ann (Cox) Inks -Warren passed away this last Thanksgiving, November 25, 2021, at the age of 87. Thanksgiving Day was always a most important day for Carole for many family members would gather at her home in Pharr, Texas to celebrate this day. Her passing on this day will mark in the hearts and minds the specialness and importance of Thanksgiving Day to her friends and family. Carole was a High School English Teacher for over forty (40) years with the bulk of those years serving in the Pharr-San Juan-Alamo School (PSJA) District. While she managed regular classroom duties, she also led the Shakespearean Literature efforts and debate/extemporaneous speaking programs at PSJA High School. Always an educator, she was a staunch advocate for any endeavor that expanded the mind through academic achievement. She was married to James Moore Inks. Then after his passing, she spent her later years married to James Warren until his passing. She is survived by her daughter, Jacqueline Gonzalez (Horacio, Sr); three step-grandchildren, Horacio Jr, Marco, and Daniella; her son, Jay Inks (Lori); five grandchildren, Justin, Jenna (Tyler), Julia, Jayme, and Jillian. Visitation for Carole and her family will be at 9:00AM to 10:00AM on Wednesday, December 1, 2021, at Kreidler Funeral Home on North 10th Street with graveside services at Roselawn Cemetery to follow at 11:00AM. Pallbearers for Carole will be Justin Inks, Mike Cox, John Cox, Horacio Gonzalez, Sr, Marco Gonzalez, and Jay Inks.

“ Mrs. Inks was my teacher a very long time ago. I never forgot her because of the great way she would teach, and that left a mark on me. She was such a beautiful lady and I still remember her beautiful blue eyes. For some reason, I was thinking of her not to long ago and wondered about her. My deepest condolences to the family.
